Swinomish reservation

Landforms and history

The Swinomish channel, a large channel that runs between la conner and the Swinomish reservation, means that we have a large fishing industry. The fields surrounding La conner also mean that the area has a large amount of farms. This area was mainly a fishing and farming town out in the middle of nowhere after its founding, and for this reason it was attractive to several artists for its peaceful serene atmosphere. Eventually, people attempting to avoid the draft in Vietnam came to the area, and built a small neighborhood called fish town. Although the artists have mostly faded away, they attracted the tourists, which are a major source of revenue for the town now.

Tulips

Many of the farms in La Conner grow tulips in the spring, which attracts tourists to the tulip festival.
